According to D. O. McCray's Latest Political Story Which, of Course, is Told from a Democratic Standpoint.

Mr. D. O. McCray, Topeka correspondent of the St. Louis Republic, sends an article to his paper which purports to give the entire Republican slate as arranged in case of Major Morrill's election. Whether Mr. McCray's information is based on authentic knowledge, we are unable to say, but his "story" is of considerable interest at least. It is as follows:

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 10.—Two years' absence from the official crib has developed a ravenous hunger among the old crowd of Republicans who for years monopolized the offices in Kansas. In fact, from the day they were compelled to leave the state house and the various institutions they have been planning to get back again.

They not only expect to win in the coming election, but they intend to install in the fat places, if the Republican ticket is elected, the same old barnacles whose questionable records resulted in the complete sweeping out which the people administered in 1892.

Should Major Morrill be elected he will simply honor the requisitions made upon him by Cy Leland, who has been the recognized party boss for a quarter of a century. Leland is chairman of the state central committee, and he proposes to dictate the appointments, from railroad commissioners down to janitor in the state house. While promises of place have been made to hundreds of men over the state who have not heretofore been in the Morrill crowd, none of them will be fulfilled and only those who have done Leland's bidding will secure the plum.

The latest deal is one involving the state printership. This is one of the best offices in the state, and every man who has held it has grown rich. It was believed until within the past week that the contest would be between J. E. Hudson, editor of the Topeka Capital, and George W. Crane.

Today, however, two prominent Republican politicians from western Kansas came here to ascertain what there was in the Hoch candidacy. Investigation disclosed the fact that E. W. Hoch of Marion is a candidate for state printer and that he has the earnest support of the leaders at headquarters here.

J. W. Moore, another Marion county politician, is also slated for warden of the penitentiary, while J. M. Simpson, Bernard Kelly and George T. Anthony have been billed for railroad commissioners. Kelly wanted to be supervisor out of insurance, but Leland is reserving that place, which is one of the best in the gift of the state, for himself or ex-Senate Senator John Shilling of Hiawatha.

Leland is waiting until the legislature is elected, and, if his party wins, he will be a candidate for United States senator. He has insisted all the time that the senatorial matter should not be discussed in the newspapers until after election, and it must be said to his credit as a manipulator that he has managed to keep it down.

Of course, he had a two-fold object in view. He could play the other candidates against each other, work up a red-hot fight, and while this was in progress personally help many candidates for the house in close districts, and thus put them under obligations to him. Then, when the senatorial battle was hot, Leland, as the man who led the party to victory, would force to the front as the compromise candidate upon whom the friends of all candidates could unite.

early in November if the Republicans win the legislature.

Not only have the managers in charge of the campaign slated favorites for the best positions, but promises have been made to at least 100 men for the remaining 25 or 30 positions on state board. Not more than one out of five will get the office promised, and should the ticket be elected there will be such a scramble among the hungry hordes as was never before witnessed in the state.

ENDORSE HIS POSITION.

Christian Endeavorers Stand By the Editor of the Endeavorer.

Editor Lewis Roby of the Kansas Endeavorer says his position as to the political duty of the members of the Y. P. S. C. E. is being generally endorsed by the members of the society over the state. He has received more letters endorsing his position and although he has refrained from publishing any political editorials in the recent issues of his paper he is ready to defend himself should any more attacks be leveled in that direction by the partisan press.

TO VOTE FOR PICKERING.

James A. Troutman Says Many Populists Will Vote the Prohibition Ticket.

James A. Troutman says the party Prohibition ticket will get about 6,000 votes this fall. He says: "A very few Republicans will probably vote the Prohibition ticket, because the convention did not endorse the prohibitory law, but the number is inconsiderable. I am satisfied, however, that quite a large number of Populists, who have become disgusted with Gov. Lewelling's pandering to the liquor element, will support the Prohibition ticket, which will probably result in an increase of 25 to 40 per cent."

SENATOR MARTIN'S CANDIDACY.

Why Chairman Richardson of the Democratic Committee Cancelled His Dates.

Judge John Martin is still a candidate for United States senator, although he will not take an active part in the campaign. Chairman Richardson, of the Democratic state central committee, in speaking of Senator Martin, said: "I could not ask Senator Martin to make any speech after the death of his son, and while his wife is so seriously ill, and I have accordingly cancelled all his dates. The senator will not in any way participate in the campaign, although he is still a candidate for re-election to the senate."

HIS FAVORITE VERSES.

Dr. Alexander Marked the Passages of Scripture That Were Read at His Funeral.

One of the most striking features of Dr. Alexander's funeral yesterday was the reading of his favorite passages of scripture which he had marked in his Bible, by his pastor, Dr. Alderson. Dr. Alexander was a student of his Bible as well as of medicine, and his favorite passages will interest many of his friends and acquaintances.

The verses read were from the books of Job and Ecclesiastes, and were: "A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance, but by sorrow of heart the spirit is broken." "Let the young man, in his youth, and let the heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth and walk in the ways of thine heart and in the little state eyes, but know thou that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment." "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger."

MR. NELSON'S "ANTI-LEAN."

How Everybody Can Be Fat and Happy—A Problem Solved.

There is a business man in Topeka, an active merchant, who performs more than ordinary work each day, who has tasted no food but milk for more than a year and a half.

The gentleman in question is C. M. Nelson, a member of the firm of Stevenson & Co., who lives at 1118 Tyler street.

For more than nineteen months Mr. Nelson has subsisted wholly on milk, and he expects to all the rest of his life. He has become perfectly reconciled to his diet and has no appetite for even the most tempting delicacies. He drinks on an average eight quarts of milk a day, at the customary meal-times, and is never hungry. What is more he weighs nearly forty pounds more than when he commenced his remarkable diet.

This case of Mr. Nelson is not only an interesting but a remarkable one in both a general and a medical sense. The possibility of an active, full-grown man subsisting on milk alone has been a point of controversy among the wisest doctors that man could live on milk alone for a considerable period.

It has been generally admitted, but many students of medicine have denied, that milk possessed the elements necessary to make it a permanent exclusive diet. Mr. Nelson was troubled for a long time with an ailment similar to diabetes. It became impossible for him to eat any solid foods, even those most nutritious and easily digested. It became a case of milk or starve, and Mr. Nelson preferred milk. He purchased a fine Jersey cow, and his barn has for a period of nineteen months been at once his grocery, meat market, fruit store, confectionery store and apothecary shop.

So far as known Mr. Nelson is the only man in America of so limited a diet.

Mr. Nelson said to a JOURNAL reporter today: "A great many of my friends have not known till lately that I lived on milk alone, and when they first hear of it they generally discredit the statement and come to me and tell me about a 'great gag' somebody has been getting off at my expense."

"I abandoned all food but milk early in March, 1893, or over a year and a half ago. I weighed about 135 pounds then. Since then I have weighed as high as 190 pounds, although my weight is about ten pounds less than that at present."

"Have you become reconciled to your diet?"

"Yes; completely so. There is nothing good enough in the market to even tempt me mildly. It was pretty hard at first, and for the first eight or nine months I wanted to eat everything I saw. Then my present appetite came to me all at once, and now I have no more desire for fruit or pastry than you have to jump into the river. I don't even drink water except after it has been boiled and is warm. I drink from eight to nine quarts of milk a day and I am perfectly satisfied to live on milk alone all the rest of my life."

"If more people who were troubled as I was would eat pastry and such food alone and drink more milk, there would be more happy people in the world."

"I recommend the exclusive milk diet unqualifiedly, but if they don't want to do that do the next best thing and drink the milk anyhow."

Perhaps They Are Signaling to Find Out.

The Professor—As to there being any inhabitants on Mars, Miss Laura, it is all a matter of conjecture. The planet is believed to be older than ours, and it is possible it may be inhabited by human beings much further advanced in knowledge than we.

Miss Laura—Do you suppose, professor, they have any idea the name of their planet is Mars?—Chicago Tribune.

He Would Live Always.

A man who was deeply in debt was sick unto death.

"Ah," he sighed, "if I could only live until I had paid off my debts."

"Humph!" sneered the doctor bluntly, "you want to live forever, do you?"—Texas Sittings.

Doubtful, But—
